Foreword

Growth is not easy or painless.

This edition of WHISPERING HILLS attempts to exhibit some of this process. We welcome the Children's Center as evidence of growth. We commend the Elementary School for accepting the responsibility to produce their portion of this book. This has been sometimes painful as their sponsors can attest. We salute the valiant efforts of our advertising department to make color a "first" in 1978. We congratulate our advertisers for choosing to place an advertisement, and we appreciate our staff who spent many long hours to make this volume possible. We recommend that you assume your favorite position for contemplation and enjoy the evidence we have produced. We trust you will receive much happiness as you peruse these pages.

Principal's Message

Jesse Cone, MA Introductory Analysis

Conversation is an extremely interesting means of communication. Have you ever sat quietly in the dorm, on the bus, in a group and spent the time analyzing things revealed in the conversation of others.

In most cases it doesn't take long until we know many of the interests of those people taking part. In fact, as we respond one to another, we often find our conversation coming back to particular topics which are of greatest interest to ourselves. As we analyze this fact in light of eternity, I wonder how many of the things which occupy great amounts of our conversational intercourse will burn when the earth burns with the brightness of His coming.

To a great extent it seems that the direction of our lives is revealed in our conversation. We converse and express to others those things which occupy our mind. As I think about this, I must question myself. Does my conversation reveal a love for my Saviour, a desire to do His will and a desire to make His name known in the world?

I think of the section in the book, Steps to Christ, which states:

Who has the heart? With whom are our thoughts? Of whom do we love to converse? Who has our warmest affections and our best energies? If we are Christ's, our thoughts are with Him, and our sweetest thoughts are of Him. All we have and are is consecrated to Him. We long to bear His image, breathe His spirit, do His will, and please Him in all things.

It is our true desire here that as you have attended Fletcher that you might have become more deeply committed disciples of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, and I sincerely hope that whether you are a senior finishing your course work here, whether you are an underclassman planning to come back or planning to go somewhere else, that your conversation will clearly reveal whole spirit dwells within you and to whom you have dedicated your life. May the revelation be the living Spirit of Christ dwelling within.

"O.K., sopranos, spit out your gum, dig your heels into the floor and scream!"

With these familiar words, voiced by our valiant leader, the choir begins practice on another anthem to be sung the next Sabbath.

By the utter chaos which is heard, however, on the first practice session on Monday, one begins to wonder how in the world the piece is ever going to be ready to perform. But the director, seemingly unconcerned with our inabilities, patiently hammers out each part at the keyboard, and by Sabbath morning another miracle has occurred. The choir actually sounds good!

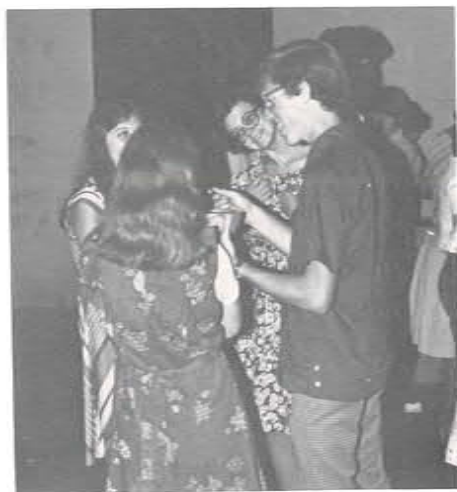

Not only, however, are you doing a tremendous job with our choir, but you are also a constant inspiration to us as students. You have taken so much interest in our problems, our difficulties, and our joys, and your motherly concern and prayers for us have caused us to think of you not only as a choir director, but as a true friend whom we love and admire.

This is why we, the annual staff, on behalf of the student body, proudly dedicate this yearbook of 1977-1978 to you - Mrs. Helen Mills Rust.

Youth Pastor's Message

Will we do what is right?

If we are willing to be confronted, perhaps this is the greatest question we face in our lives. I would imagine that at least 75% of our unhappiness and discontent we bring on ourselves simply because we do what is wrong—how often have we turned our backs on a better way!

A life reaping the consequences of our own poor choices is certainly not God's plan for our lives. This is why He offers us a Saviour, with His wonderful plan for saving people just like us, so prone to error and failure.

Jesus has not only made it unmistakably clear what is right, but He offers us His power as we seek to do it. He will stand beside us as we really try to make worthwhile changes in the way we think and speak and act. He will give us new desires—and a new willingness—that will lead to a new life. His presence with us makes the impossible possible.

Let us act as if our heavenly Father could be trusted. As we begin making decisions on the basis of what He has said and shown to us, we will find Him readily supplying the willingness and energy necessary. We will discover in our own experience what it means to have a Friend and Helper like our Saviour, Jesus. He will help you do what is right.

Will you try?

Don Vollmer

"Oh that they had such a mind as this always, to fear me and to keep all my commandments, that it might go well with them and with their children forever!" (Deut. 5:29).*

"For this is the love of God, that we keep His commandments. And His commandments are not burdensome" (I John (5:3).

"A new heart I will give you . . . And I will put my Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes and be careful to observe my ordinances" (Ezekiel 36:26,27).

Cherub Day

Message To Fletcher Academy Students

What impresses me most about Fletcher Academy is the uncharacteristic loyalty of its alumni. The evidence was demonstrated so clearly on Sabbath morning (October 8, 1977) of Alumni Weekend. I was told that we had the highest attendance on record—approximately 1,100 persons were present.

More impressive is the commitment of the graduates to the religious philosophy of life, the Christian values, and the noble goals of their Alma Mater. Their dedication to the Seventh-day Adventist Church, their relentless search for what is right and true, and their selfless services within and without the church form perhaps the highest tribute to the faculty and staff of Fletcher Academy.

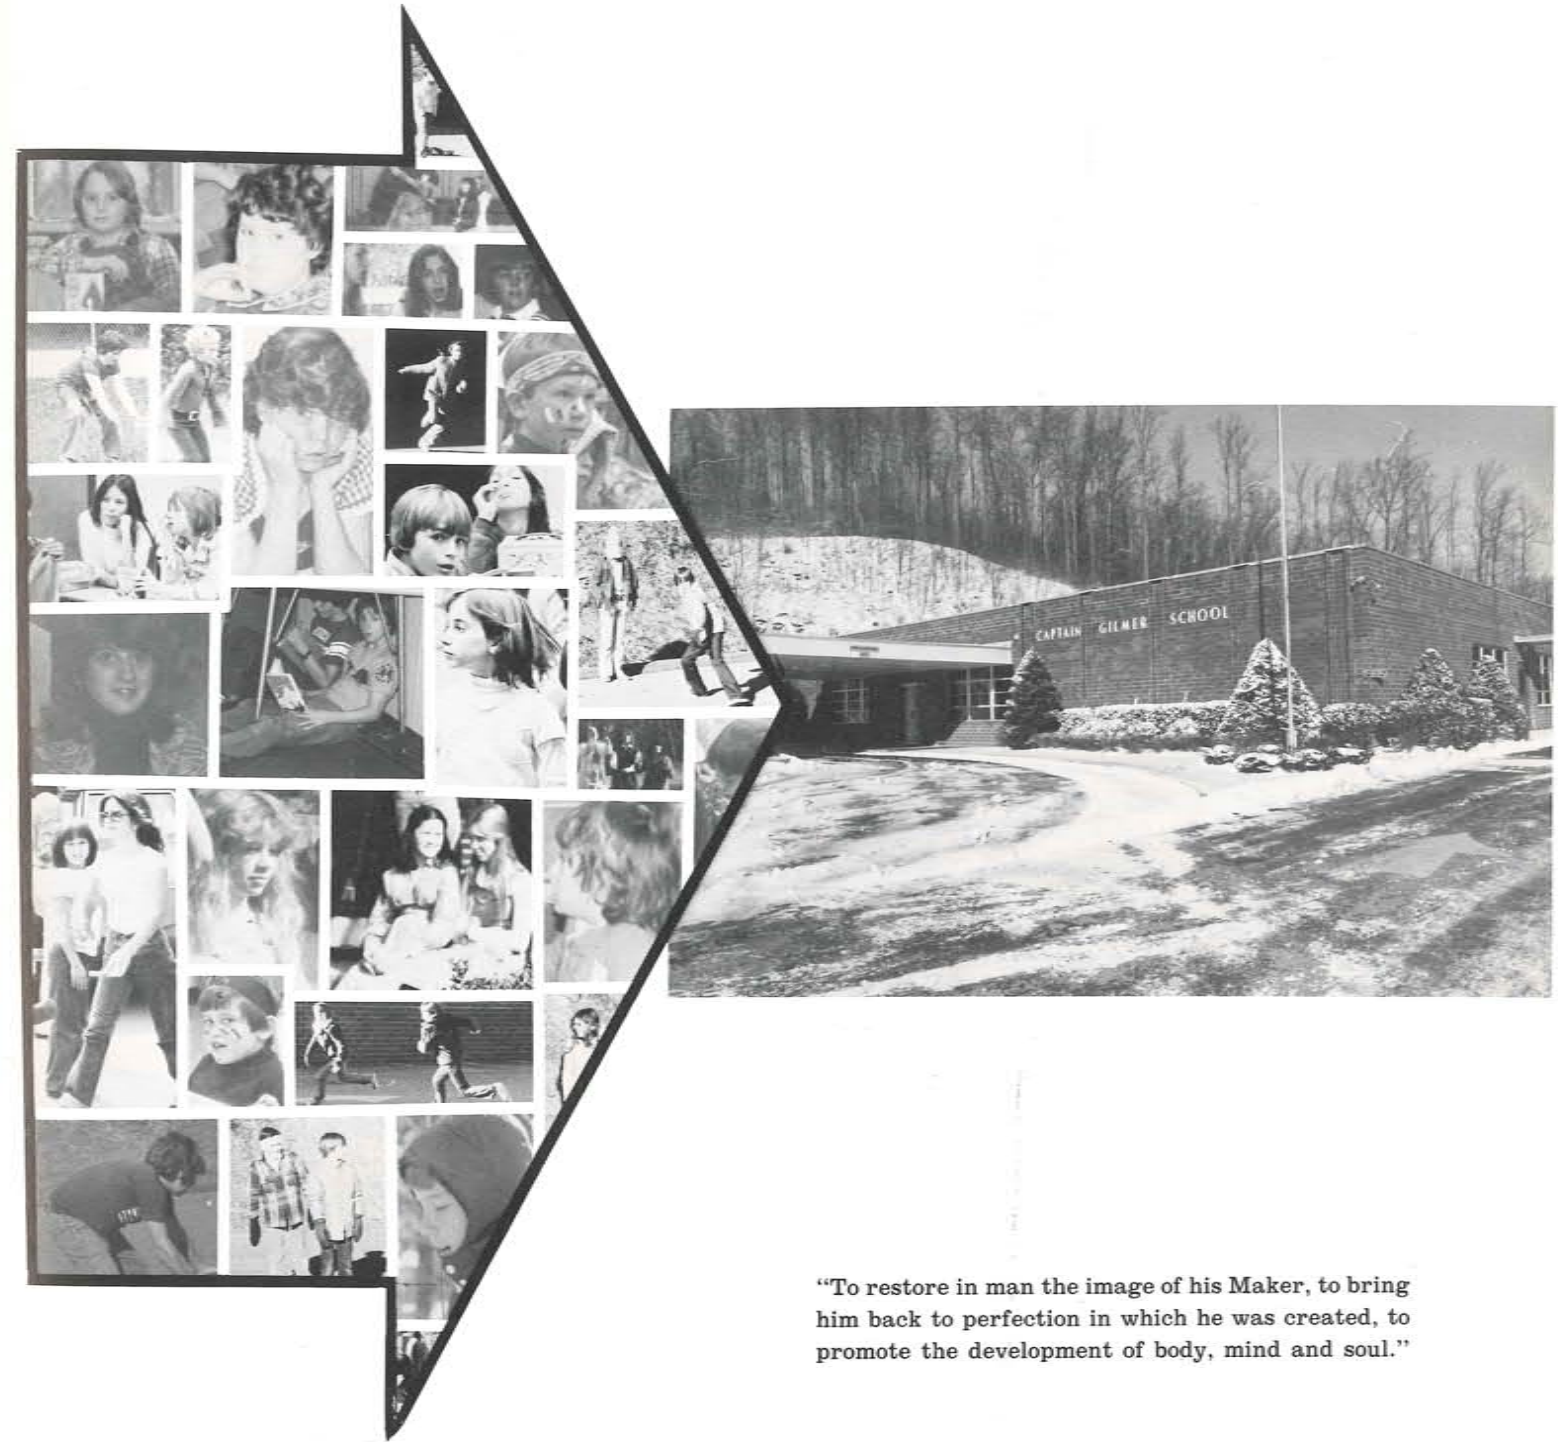

With these observations in mind, I want to address myself to you the students who attended this school year (1977-1978). I have no doubt that you can measure up to and even surpass the achievements of those who preceded you, so long as your life is centered in Christ. Only you can determine whether your relationship with Him is honest and open. As you doubtless know, He allows for no reservations because He wants more than a segment of your personality. He wants your entire life, and in exchange He gives you the limitless resources of heaven to carry out your objectives. And that is an offer you cannot afford to miss!

Knowing this, I look forward to a future for Fletcher that is bright with promise. May God richly bless each of you.

Captain Gilmer School

"To restore in man the image of his Maker, to bring him back to perfection in which he was created, to promote the development of body, mind and soul."

Principal's Message

A story is told about young Abraham Lincoln while he was working in a country store. A lady by the name of Mrs. Duncan paid him six cents too much. This bothered Abe so much that at the end of the day he walked over two miles on a muddy country road to return the money. Abraham Lincoln determined that being honest was an important quality in building good character. His honesty helped him lead our country through a most difficult time in its history. No wonder he was referred to as "Honest Abe".

The word "honest" is a fairly easy word to say but for some it is a very hard word to keep. According to the dictionary, honest comes from the word honor. It means not to lie, cheat or steal, being trustworthy, truthful, showing fairness and sincerity, and being what it seems. God, when giving his ten rules whereby man was to live included honesty as an important precept when He said, "Thou shalt not bear false witness." This quality of being honest is an essential building block in developing good characters that will stand for eternity.

Every student has seen some form of dishonesty in school life. What is our responsibility to check dishonesty even though we ourselves may strive to be honest in all things? According to Testimonies, Vol. 4, page 516, we do have a moral obligation to help correct dishonest behavior in others. For it states, "We are just as accountable for evils that we might have checked in others . . . as if we were guilty of the acts ourselves." Yes, the world is looking for honest people. In fact, "the greatest want of the world is the want of men—men who will not be bought or sold, men who in their inmost souls are true and honest . . ." Ed., page 57.

The

President's

Message

"I'm happy today, I'm happy today" is the start of a chorus that all of you have sung at one time or another. It has within it the key to living, a life filled to the brim with joys and successes. Being happy today is more than an effort to psyche ourselves into some euphoric state. It is the only way to get around the ups and downs that life brings to each of us. Each word is so important. First is the I. You are the one who determines how you feel and how you look at the events around you. Happiness does not come from things, or your environment; it comes from you. Today, the only day you have, is where you must live. Not in the past, not in the future, just today. With Jesus Christ you can be happy today. I am, and I so much hope you are also.

Precious memories . . .

How they linger

Director's Message

Never before has there been so many opportunities in which a Christian nurse may serve as now. Nursing is an honored profession, and as we endeavor to become "workers together with God" there are tremendous opportunities for service to others as well as for making personal progress.

The Fletcher Hospital School of Nursing is dedicated to the ideals of educating and inspiring young people in the profession of Christian nursing. Our nursing school model is "the Wholeness of Man" and so the school seeks to encourage students to spend their lives in loving service for God and humanity.

We are proud of the sixty members of our student body, and the dedicated faculty. We are also proud of our hospital, and we believe that in this Christian institution students are learning to give that care to the patient and his family, which will bring physical, mental, social and spiritual comfort.

—Edith L. Westbrook, M.S.

Josephine Clayburn
July, 1964-July 1977

School of Nursing Directors

Josephine Clayburn, class of 1946, came to the School of Nursing as director in July, 1964, after having spent almost 13 years in mission service in Africa. After having spent 13 years of service as our director, Miss Clayburn terminated her work here in July, 1977, to return to Africa. She accepted a call as director of the School of Nursing, Kanye Hospital, Botswana. We have missed Miss Clayburn, her direction, advice and friendship in the School of Nursing, but feel we have been most fortunate in having another graduate of our school come to act as director, Edith Westbrook. Mrs. Westbrook, class of 1945, came from Pacific Union College, Glendale Campus, in California, to take over the director's work.

In Memoriam

Since Worthie Possinger Lewis completed her work at the Mountain Sanitarium and Hospital School of Nursing in September 1948, until October 27, 1977, her life was spent in dedicated service to her family, her friends, and the patients who came under her care. Her quick smile, her ready sense of humor, her courage in the face of trouble, her trust in God made life's road more smooth for those whose lives she touched.

We miss her coming and going on campus, in the hospital halls, in church, at community gatherings, but her memory lives on in our hearts and we lovingly say "Goodby, until the morning."

Dedication

Mrs. Pendleton,
We dedicate this annual to you because of your sincerity and involvement with us. You listen when we have ideas and understand when we make mistakes. You are much loved because we can see that you love us also.
Thank you for helping us to have a great year.

Shawnee Mission Medical Center

—not a mission hospital, but a hospital with a mission—

Indians lived here when Lewis and Clark traveled through the area in 1804. How times have changed!

As white men pioneered westward, Indians were pushed from their native land. To help the Shawnee Indians, a Methodist minister set up a small mission in what was to later become suburban Kansas City. After three decades his project folded.

But the name Shawnee Mission remains as a vestige of a bygone era.

Although Shawnee Mission Medical Center is not a mission clinic, it has a definite mission. Treating 65,000 people a year, the 373-bed medical center follows the example of the Great Physician, who spent much of his time caring for the physical infirmities of those around him.

For those interested in employment opportunities, please call the personnel department at (913) 676-2252.
